The Traveling Plant Preparatory Log Book

During Ars Electronica Festival 2020, and until September 30th 2020, everyone is welcome to send his/her own contribution. An edited selection will be added to the invited texts (material without proper copyright will be rejected).

Your Contribution

We are asking you, in a caring hosting tradition, to tell the plant what she could expect to experience and to discover along her journey, what and whom (humans and other than humans) she may encounter.

Your text may relate to anything you want: introduction to local plants (terrestrial or aquatic), friendly or frightening creatures, local food markets, urban, rural, or desert environments, stories, myths, books, museums, greenhouses, cracks in the pavement, science labs, insides, outsides, softwares, robots, dead things, living things, non living things, semi-living things, and more.

It may be personal or general, practical or theoretical. It may be local (where you are living), or regional or wider to the country, etc.
